37 C.F.R. § 1.131 AFFIDAVIT OF LEONARD H. LOPEZ, JR.

I, Leonard H. Lopez, Jr., being duly sworn, state as follows:

1. I am over 21 years of age, a resident of San Antonio, Bexar County, Texas, and I am competent to make this affidavit. The following statements are true statements made of my own knowledge or statements that I, on information and belief, believe to be true.
2. I am the inventor of the invention claimed in the application entitled "Internet Based Print Order System," filed on January 18, 2000, which is attached as Exhibit "A."
3. I completely reduced to practice my claimed invention prior to May 12, 1999, the date of an SEC filing by ImageX. I understand that the filing is cited as the primary reference in an office action in the pending application rejecting the claims of that application under 35 U.S.C. § 103(a).
4. The first public or commercial use of my invention occurred April 12, 1999.

5. Attached as Exhibit "B" are screen shots showing a completion and reduction to practice of my invention. The screen shots show the invention in use by an employee of an actual client who was using the system to check the status of business card orders. The screen shots display my internet-accessible purchaser interface that enables a company purchasing agent to review a report indicating the status of all orders in the system. The first order submitted to my Internet Print Order System, as shown by Exhibit "B," can be seen to have occurred on April 19, 1999. This exhibit shows the status of all online orders placed by KCI, who was the first corporate client to use my invention. Exhibit "B" shows that on April 19, 1999 my invention worked for its intended purpose. On that date, user Louis Cuadra, among other users, ordered business cards.

6. Attached as Exhibit "C" are screen shots showing a completion and reduction to practice of my invention as it appeared on June 10, 1999 to an employee of an actual client who was using the system to order business cards. The screen shots, in particular, display (1) my internet-accessible requestor interface that enables a user to select a company-tailored print product, to enter user-indicative information, and the submit an order for a selected print product; and (2) a profile developed by the customer through an internet-accessible profile management interface; and process of collecting and providing company-indicative informational elements and content.

7. Attached as Exhibit "D" is a screen shot showing a completion and reduction to practice of my invention as it appeared on June 10, 1999 to an employee of an actual client who was using the system to order business cards. The screen shots, in particular, display the list of available print products that were defined as company-tailored prototypical product records.

8. Attached as Exhibit "F" is a screen shot showing a completion and reduction to practice of my invention showing a preview of a business card as displayed to an employee of an the aforementioned client. This screen shot shows the employee-entered information automatically incorporated into a template of a prototypical product record and displayed for employee preview and approval.

9. Attached as Exhibit "V" are screen shots showing a completion and reduction to practice of my invention as it appeared on April 20, 1999 to an employee of an actual client who was using the system to order business cards. The screen shots, in particular, display (1) my internet-accessible requestor interface that enables a user to select a company-tailored print product, to enter user-indicative information, and the submit an order for a selected print product; and (2) a profile developed by the customer through an internet-accessible profile management interface; and process of collecting and providing company-indicative informational elements and content.

10. Attached as Exhibit "W" is an email chain from the software developer which acknowledges that my invention was complete and fully functional as of April 12, 1999. The email was sent to the first corporate user of my invention, KCI, on that date, and was also forwarded to me.

11. Attached as Exhibit "Z" is the invoice for the print products shown in Exhibit "B."
